
2025 Qurbani Humanitarian Programme Report

The 2025 Qurbani Humanitarian Programme was successfully implemented across multiple African countries through a collaborative partnership between an international humanitarian organisation and accredited local implementing partners. The initiative was designed to fulfil the religious obligation of Qurbani while delivering meaningful humanitarian assistance to vulnerable communities during Eid al-Adha.

The programme was executed with a high level of professionalism, coordination, and accountability. Careful planning, effective logistical arrangements, and strong collaboration between international and local teams ensured that all activities were carried out efficiently and in accordance with Islamic principles and recognised humanitarian standards.

Independent international observers monitored every stage of the programme, from the selection of livestock and the slaughter process to the packaging and distribution of meat. Their oversight provided an important layer of transparency and accountability, ensuring that the programme maintained the highest standards of integrity and that assistance reached the intended beneficiaries in a fair and dignified manner.

The programme reached vulnerable communities across both urban and rural areas, prioritising households facing food insecurity and economic hardship. Particular attention was given to supporting widows, orphans, older persons, internally displaced families, persons with disabilities, and other vulnerable groups, enabling them to celebrate Eid al-Adha with dignity and hope.

The successful implementation of the programme reflects the strength of effective partnerships between international organisations, local implementing partners, community leaders, volunteers, and independent observers. Their shared commitment ensured that the programme was delivered safely, respectfully, and efficiently, despite the logistical complexities associated with operating across multiple countries.

Beyond providing essential food assistance, the initiative strengthened community solidarity, promoted social inclusion, and reinforced the humanitarian values of compassion, generosity, and shared responsibility that underpin the spirit of Qurbani. It also demonstrated the importance of transparent implementation, strong local partnerships, and effective international cooperation in delivering humanitarian assistance to those most in need.

Overall, the 2025 Qurbani Humanitarian Programme stands as a highly successful initiative that fulfilled its religious and humanitarian objectives while making a meaningful impact on vulnerable communities. It serves as an excellent example of how coordinated international cooperation, local expertise, and a shared commitment to serving humanity can deliver assistance with dignity, accountability, and lasting positive impact.
